

GREAT SOUTHERN RAIL TRAIL

The trail winds its way through the streets of Welshpool before continuing along to the coast. This is a short 5km flat section as you approach Corner Inlet and the end of the Great Southern Rail Trail. You will pass the golf course and lush pockets of coastal vegetation before arriving in the fishing town of Port Welshpool. Enjoy breathtaking views of Corner Inlet, Snake Island and Wilsons Promontory.

WELSHPOOL

Welshpool is nestled inland at the foothills of the Strzelecki Ranges just a short distance from the rugged south eastern coastline. Once a busy cargo interchange, including fish caught in Corner Inlet bound for the Melbourne markets and beyond, the Welshpool track continued to Yarram to transport passengers and goods. From here, the trail diverts from the South Gippsland Highway and heads towards the coast.

PORT WELSHPOOL

Once a thriving fishing and cargo port, this coastal town still provides seafood for markets in Melbourne and abroad, and is a hive of activity for recreational fishing and boating. The local fishing industry was the lifeblood of this community and was the reason the Corner Inlet area flourished. Take a stroll along the waterfront, or soak up the atmosphere as the fishermen unload their catch. Picnic and barbeque facilities provide the perfect spot to celebrate the beginning or end of your trail adventure.
